Of the worlds in which we dwell,
there are essentially two.
The one of reality and aims deemed practical,
of tradition, technology, and impersonality.
The other of vision and bliss deemed fanciful,
of beauty, intimacy, and personality.
In importance and consideration,
neither must eclipse its complement.
For though man must achieve,
he must embrace contentment in the process.

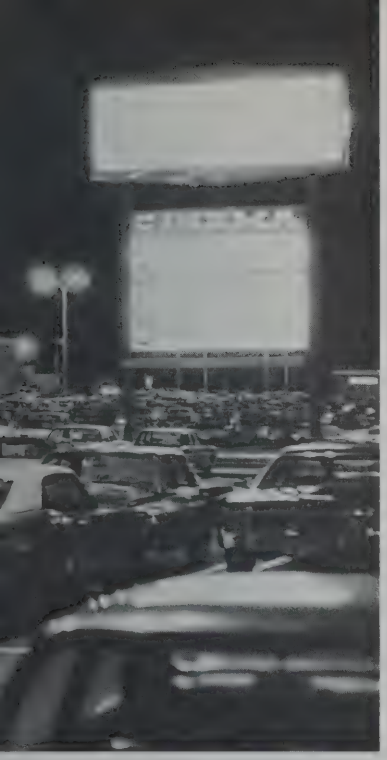
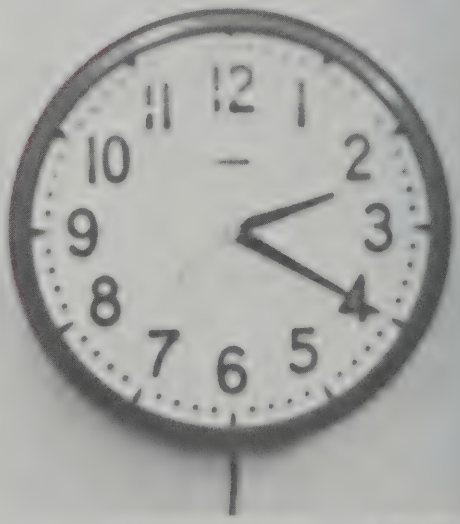
I KNOW A PLACE . . .

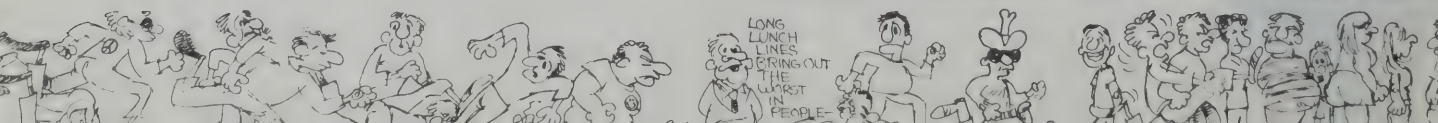


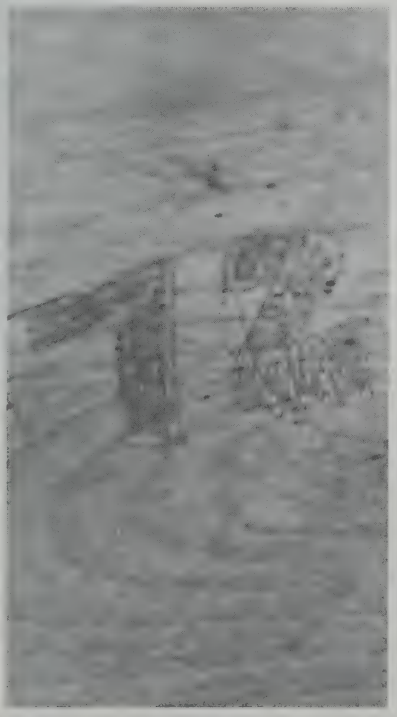
Downtown
New Bedford

SO THIS IS HIGH SCHOOL

— I finished my English term paper in typing class, one period before it was due.
—How can they hand you a number two pencil and a sheet of paper and ask you to blacken eighteen years of knowledge into a bunch of tiny rectangles?
— Yesterday, I took a Math Test in 5th period class to make up the test that I should have taken in 3rd period class, but didn't, because I was absent when 3rd period class took the test that I had to take in 5th period class.
— I've worn two pair of jeans all year long.
— With the rise in prices, dope is costing me too damn much.
— Twenty-five cents for this slop?
— I must go through a thousand changes in one day.
— All I want is my diploma, so I can finally get the hell out of here.
— The classes I enjoy the most are the ones where I know the teacher personally.
— I sleep more in auditorium study than I do in my own bed.
— I learned one important thing in high school: if you drink Instant Breakfast in the morning, you'll be starving by lunchtime.
— Everytime you raise your hand in class, the teacher puts a little check beside your name.
— The time that you save by learning shorthand is spent in learning what all those little squiggles mean.
— I met a lot of really great kids by writing notes on desk tops.
— So why don't the bubblers work?
— We had this sub last week who looked like he was playing hooky from kindergarten. When he sat behind the desk, all you could see was the top of his crewcut.
— If I don't get some kind of deferment, I guess I'll leave the country.
— When I handed him my note, he said that he didn't believe I was sick. So I coughed in his face.
— The only time I feel that I'm accomplishing something is when I'm playing sports.
— I didn't know any of the kids on the election ballot, so I voted for the one who had the most a's in his name.
— Have you heard from any schools yet?
— Hey . . . don't be shy with your paper.
— Will all the teachers please send down a list of students who were out of the classroom prior to the previous fire drill.
— I left it in my other notebook.
— No veg.
— What beep? I just raised my hand when all the other kids did.







— It took me three years to realize that marks aren't worth a damn.
— Every time I walk by the draft board, I remember that I didn't sign up.
— Becoming eighteen only means that I can legally drive after 1 A.M.
— D'you ever try to go to the john with a busted arm? No way.
— I think I have every book of Cliff Notes that was ever written.
— I dropped my plate and everyone started applauding.
— If you skip on Friday the teacher usually forgets by Monday.
— It's not that I'm self-conscious or anything like that; I just look funny with my glasses on.
— I thought it didn't smell like a cigarette.
— Please disregard the bells.
— I opened the door to the girl's room, and it was like one giant puff of smoke.
— Is that gum on your elbow?
— I cheat by writing tiny notes on my book cover, and then leaving the book on my desk during the test.
— I'm not paying fifty cents for a lousy test tube.
— What periods do we skip?
— The bell rings and we move like a huge flock of obedient sheep.
— Doesn't anyone else know these cheers?
— I just found out that we're having a surprise quiz in chemistry.
— I'm afraid of losing the security of high school.
— Positive ID Required.
— Aardvark, seat number one. Albino, seat number two.
— It makes me feel great when people get lower grades than me.
— Do you boys have permission?
— After you memorize the 629 theorems, geometry's not so bad.
— Your homework tonight is to review for the test.
— Marching in the band is okay, if you don't mind having chipped teeth.
— At first she slapped me; later she thanked me.
— I just don't have the time to join any clubs.
— The days that I have my homework, she doesn't collect it.
— At least your acne is on your back, where it doesn't show as much.
— . . . and I don't want any excuses.
— What d'you call a Portagee who . . .
— He said he was counting that test three times.
— But everybody else is smoking it!
— Ziblonsky, seat number forty-five. Zonkra, bring a chair tomorrow.

The Begatting of NBHS

And behold, the eyes of the world were upon one city; and the city was called Nova Bedfordia. For she had prospered much; and her people had seen favor in the eyes of the Lord.

2 And the people rejoiced and danced in the streets. For out of the ground hath the Lord made to grow every fruit that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food.

3 And the people forgot God; for their wealth was much.

4 And the Lord God said, Let there be a famine in the land; so that I might know if my people love me.

5 And He sent a famine throughout the land; not of food, but of knowledge.

6 And all the schools were gone; and the people were sore afraid. And there was much weeping and gnashing of teeth.

7 And the king sent forth a decree, saying, Let a green schoolhouse be built on the street that is called Charles. And it was done.

8 The elders cried, The city must not supply her people with knowledge. For our shekels are few. Yea, according to law, it is the work of parents.

9 And the rich found their words gracious; and the place of learning was no more.

10 And it came to pass in the process of time, that a new school was made on the street of the Elm.

11 And the Elm Street School begat the Middle Street School; and the Middle Street School begat a school on the street that was called Summer.

12 For the people were many and, yea, the cubits were few.

13 And in the year one thousand nine hundred and two, the school that was Summer was no more.

14 And the people rent their clothes; for there was much sadness in the land.

And the people made a burnt offering unto the Lord. And they cried for wisdom in their time of fear.

2 And God looked down from above, and spake with a thundering voice.

3 Build ye a place of learning and call it NBHS; for ye are forgiven and shall suffer no more.

4 And the people rejoiced exceedingly.

5 And a feast was made; and the meat of young bullocks, rams, and lambs of the first year was shared. And of bread and sweet wine, there was aplenty.

6 And the great school was begun; for the people were hungry for truth and knowledge.

7 Yea, the carpenters and bricklayers and masons and taskmasters gathered on a plain near the street that was called William.

8 And they said one to another, Go to, let us make brick and let us build a school whose top may reach unto Heaven.

9 And they were cast from the city and scattered abroad; for their voice was as the sound of politicians.

10 Now the people cast lots, and the planners and the architect were chosen.

11 And there was a great tumult in the city; for the school would take many shekels and minas from the purses of the people.

12 And the mouths of the people were filled with arguments; and their words and speeches were as the wind.

13 And one cried, The debt shall be too great.

14 Another cried, Let us build a house of manual training.

15 Yet another cried, Let it teach the arts of the household.

16 For these were the laws of the land they said, though the people had pronounced them unclean.

17 And many cried, Let the school be of many cubits; for our children are as the grains of sand on East Beach.

18 And the words of many were as fire, saying, Let there be a place in the school where bread and honey might be shared. Let there be tabernacles of science and rooms where young warriors may be trained.

19 For there had been none of these.

20 And the fool said, My wealth is vast and, yea, my knowledge is not from the place which ye call school. And he proclaimed that a school should not rise up.

21 And the king listened to the words of the people; for he was wise.

22 And he called together the elders and the scribes. And they spoke one with another.

23 And the king sent forth a decree; and the school was built.

24 And brick was brought from the East and marble from the richest kingdoms of Africa. The glass was as diamond, and the wood from the finest young saplings.

25 And the people were exceedingly glad; for theirs was a place of beauty and of knowledge.

26 For scholars journeyed from the ends of the earth, so that they might teach in the school that was called blessed.

27 And it came to pass that as the people multiplied, the school grew in stature.

28 For the masons and the bricklayers were wise, and they added unto the school.

29 And the school was called NBHS; for the Lord God had spoken.

And the school prospered; and the people were filled with knowledge.

2 The eyes of the world were once again on the city that was called Nova Bedfordia. And the love of the people was great, one unto the other.

3 And the great happiness was soon pluckt from the people. And they stretched forth their hands; for the plagues, which numbered seven, were upon the land.

4 And NBHS was plagued with the strikes of the teachers, and with food which was as the meat of frogs, and with tumbling walls, and a great multitude of students, and students who spake with uncircumcised lips, and robbers and evildoers, and teachers whose minds were sealed as tombs.

5 And the king said, Let a new school be built; for the destruction of NBHS is at hand.

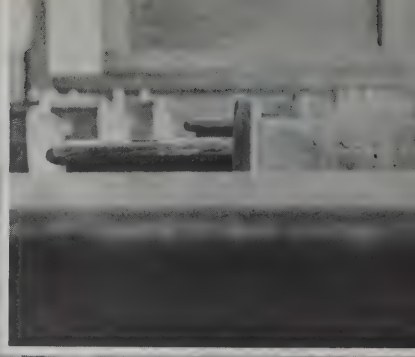
6 And the people were of one accord; and the building of the school was begun.

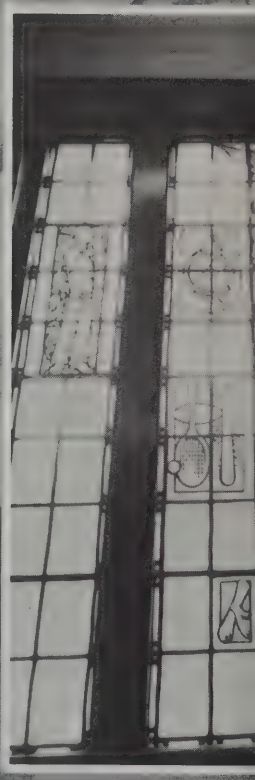
7 And, yea, NBHS was abandoned. For the people had forgotten the joy they had shared therein.

8 Yea, a spirit hath not flesh nor bones, neither hath it wood nor marble. And the spirit of NBHS passed into the school whose stone was yet young.

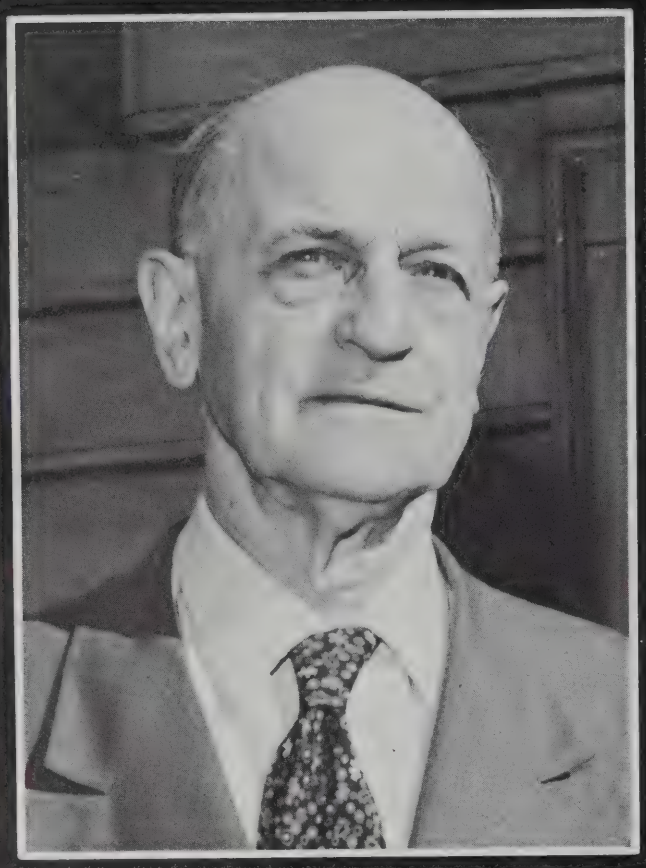
9 And Nova Bedfordia saw grace in the eyes of the Lord.

10 And there was great rejoicing in the city; yea, even unto Fall River. Amen.





I feel a very gentle sound . . .



IN MEMORIAM
ALLISON R. DORMAN

1938-1949 Principal of New Bedford High School

b. 1879 — d. 1971

ALLISON R. DORMAN, THE MAN, THE TEACHER, THE PRINCIPAL EMERITUS:

Mr. Dorman was a prominent figure in educational circles during the 1920's, 1930's and 1940's. After mandatory retirement, he became a Representative to the General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and with the stamina of men twenty years younger, he represented his section of New Bedford daily with untiring vigor. This vigor which permeated all his life stemmed from the beginnings which placed him among the ones who played the first basketball games in not only Massachusetts but in the United States. He kept in constant physical condition by acting as a referee, by coaching high school teams while constantly his long lean frame was seen striding through the corridors of New Bedford High School . . . always "on duty".

This was a man who was respected by his students, admired by his faculty, when he was head of the Business Education Department, and then when he was Principal of New Bedford High School. Perhaps, in this day some of his policies might be questioned, but they would be questioned only by those whose abilities were not able to reach the heights he demanded. He was always accessible for a chat about a problem, every week he personally brought you your pay check and had a moment to chat with you, while every player, first team or second, was known to him by his first name. He was truly Principal Emeritus . . . and I consider myself fortunate to have had the opportunity to have been one of the teacners on his faculty.

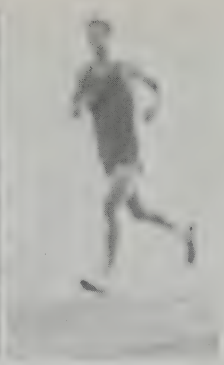
THE DURFEE RALLY



See How They Run

FOOTBALL

N.B.H.S. DUMPS DURFEE, CATCHES 2nd PLACE

The N.B.H. "11" ended this season's campaign with a noteworthy 6-1-1 performance. This record gave the Crimson 2nd berth in the Bristol County League, finishing just behind Attleboro (7-1). In its 8 fall contests, the Whalers defeated Bishop Stang, Coyle, Taunton, N.B. Vocational, Chicopee Commerce, and Durfee. They succumbed only once — this to Attleboro — and tied Bishop Feehan in their other encounters.

The season was brought to a climax with a convincing 21-8 victory over Durfee High in the Thanksgiving Day battle. This classic traditionally played on Thursday, was very untraditionally played on a Saturday due to inclement weather.

Much credit should be given to Coach Joe Bettencourt and his representatives on the field of battle for their fine efforts. All too often, the spectator merely sees the boys' polished performances in an actual contest. One must remember, however, that many hours of stances, starts, blocking, tackling, and agility drills went into molding this successful ball club.

Football, as a contact sport, truly supports the idea — "Athletics is the equalizer among all". On the football field no political tactics may be applied. The situation may be simplified to the following: the team with the greater talent and desire is the team which eventually triumphs. Moreover, many observers feel — "Next to war, football is the toughest thing!"

CRIMSON KICKERS SNATCH NEW ENGLAND CROWN

"Pride, Respect, and Loyalty" — these are the qualities Coach Bob Parker looked for team members to possess. However, Coach Parker might have included one other quality inherent in his boys, when talking with our sports staff interviewer. Undoubtedly, it was the N.B.H. Booters' ability to Win!

The invincible "Crimson Machine" compiled an eye-opening 25-0-0 season. They won 18 games in league play and 7 others in tournament contests. These impressive statistics all contributed to New Bedford High's successful quest for its first New England soccer title.

Although the team was truly awesome with its depth of talent, the going was not "all downhill" for our band of booters. At one point in the schedule, the team was forced to play 10 games, spanning 17 days. Because the state tourney commenced November 1, the Crimson were simultaneously playing their regular season circuit which did not terminate until November 12! Moreover, many hours of practice — heading, trapping, passing, and shooting into the net — were expended in making our soccer unit a solid contender this year.

At this time, we, the "Crimson Log" staff, would like to extend our sincerest congratulations in behalf of the entire school to Coach Bob Parker and his "kicky" kids for their fine efforts.

CROSS-COUNTRY
MISSED IT BY THAT MUCH

This year's N.B.H.S. cross country team recently concluded their season with a respectable 4-2 mark. This record was 2nd only to Attleboro for top spot in the Southeastern Massachusetts League. New Bedford's victims included Stang, Durfee, Coyle and Taunton. It was Attleboro, however, who assumed the role of the "spoiler" this season, beating the Crimson once in a regular season encounter and again in the Southeastern Mass. League Meet. As a consequence of this latter defeat, New Bedford High finished — guess what! — 2nd in the aforementioned meet.

Cross country, as a spectator sport, is not nearly as publicized as a football or basketball clash. Nonetheless, it requires the same motivation and desire, if the participant is to excel. Coach Ralph Perry told our sports interviewer that no one who tries out for the squad is cut. Dedication is the one essential attribute which the prospective cross country candidate must possess. With practice entailing runs of 5 to 10 miles around the Whaling City Golf Links, there is little question as to why one must perforce be dedicated to this athletic pursuit. For Coach Perry, "Those who matter are those who care."

Lately, in many newspaper articles, much controversy has been aroused as to whether participation in sports really aids in building one's character. Perhaps no other sport supports this premise any more substantially than cross country. When running until one is able to drop, it is of the utmost necessity that the individual rely upon endurance and mental discipline in finishing out the exhausting "heats". As the adage goes, "Quitters always quit and hitters always hit"!

WINTER TRACK

"Complete with a Chill, a Huff and a Puff"

N.B.H.S. Winter Track Program
"Complete with a Chill, a Huff and a Puff"

With but 3 meets remaining, the '72 Winter Track Team has already "done itself proud" by compiling 6 victories in 7 outings. Included on this impressive list of conquests are: Dartmouth, Fairhaven, Falmouth, Barnstable, Tabor Academy, and Dennis-Yarmouth. Although the squad of 34, led by Coach Ponte and co-Captains Richard Nichols and Mike McCann, is installed in no formal league as such, they find ample competition in the Southeastern Massachusetts Developmental Track Association. This association includes teams from the nearby Capeway Conference.

In regard to next year's newly-created Southeastern Massachusetts Athletic Conference, where some people seem to feel that the high school has a supposed advantage by virtue of the large enrollment and the size of players for football competition, this argument has no validity whatsoever when applied to winter track. How can a team truly call themselves first-rate, if they are unwilling to prove equal to answering the challenges of all schools? This is especially true of winter track where size is not the essential attribute, but where perseverance of the individual and natural ability wholly dominate.

In training his charges for competitive meets, involving such events as the 45-yard hurdles, the 50-, 300-, 600-, 1000-yard, mile and 2-mile runs, and relay heats, Coach Ponte has implemented what is referred to as the "interval training" technique. Thus far, he has met with considerable success as evidenced by the team's fine 6 to 1 record. Members of the squad run in groups against a time limit which is made constantly more demanding. On a typical day, the jocks might engage in twelve ½-mile runs, with 1-minute rest periods interspersed. Coach Ponte further went on to state that his runners are so dedicated to keeping their bodies in fine tone that they'd probably disown him if he called off any practices. One can easily believe this statement. After all, why else are we getting a new high school come September? Only because the track team has practiced so fervently on the 3rd floor for so many years that the structure is no longer safe to inhabit . . . it has become that RUN D

BASKETBALL

N.B.H.S. "GLOBE TROTTERS" GALLOP TOWARD STATE TITLE

N.B.H.S. "Globe-Trotters" Gallop
Toward State Title

The New Bedford High School basketball squad finds itself in the midst of another banner year. Thus far, the varsity is 9-1 in Bristol County League action and 11-2 for its overall efforts. Though the regular season has not ended at the time of this writing, the team's record, as of now, is a fair indicator of how it will fare in remaining games.

Although the Crimson basketeers take each of their 18 games as they come, the squad is eagerly awaiting the chance to show their prowess on a state level. To be eligible for this prestigious elimination event, a team must compile victories in 65% of its games or, hopefully in the case of New Bedford High, the team may also qualify by winning their league title. Through constant drilling and "just plain hard work", Coach Lombardo has again molded all the available talent into a solid contending team this season. This is where a coach is so important to the squad. If a team has much individual ability but is not well-coordinated as a whole, chances are slim of a successful outcome.

Coach Lombardo speaks of basketball in terms of life with its many "ups and downs". It's fine when a team has a comfortable lead, be it in a game or in league standings. There's always that instance out of the shadow of fate, however, when one is called upon to prove himself equal to the task. This moment may present itself when the "Star" player fouls out of an important game early in the 3rd quarter, with an untimely injury, or a bad call by the ref. Regardless of the situation, the coach has tried to instill incentive in his players to rise to the occasion and never falter.

Mr. Lombardo's philosophy is a formidable one to fault, and his basketball team — even more so!

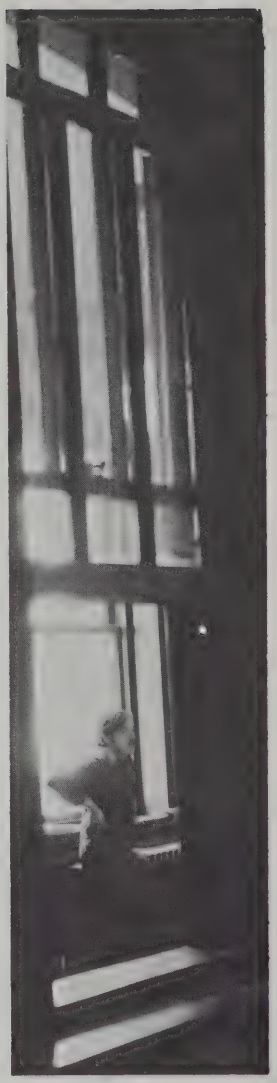
Often,
in order to keep from losing our identity
in a systemized world,
we must withdraw
into the personal world
of privacy, beauty,
amity, dreams, felicity.



There are no more deserts.
There are no more islands.
Yet there is a need for them.
In order to understand the world,
one has to turn away from it on occasion;
in order to serve men better,
one has to hold them at a distance for a time.

— Albert Camus

Mirth is like a flash

steady and perpetual serenity.
